

MC3 Josiah D. Wilson

Petty Officer Third Class Wilson was born in Lynnwood, Washington. He graduated cadet commanding officer at military academy Role Models America in Cascade, MD in 2001. Upon graduation, he went on to pursue career interests, to include owning three separate business and working for multiple media companies. Besides owning a graphic and web design business since the age of 13, his first real interest in media was when he began working with the PAX network out of Louisville, KY, first starting as a production assistant and eventually becoming director. However, it wasn't until a couple of years later when he thought of the possibility to become a Navy Mass Communications Specialist (then Photographer's Assistant). While working for a professional photography studio in Gettysburg, PA, he decided that he would like to live in Europe. It was then that he went to the Navy recruiter to join, making it his goal to move overseas.

Upon completion of recruiting training, out of Recruit Training Command Great Lakes, IL, he went on to Mass Communications Specialist A-School in Fort Meade, MD. There, he completed top of the class for several courses, and was advised to take orders to a broadcast detachment. He took the advice and completed the six-month C-School. In 2009 he reported to AFN Rota, Spain, accomplishing his goal to move overseas.

Since that time, he has completed an additional C-School (Intermediate Electronic Journalism Course), placed in the Chief of Information Awards, and was awarded Junior Sailor of the Quarter.
